

THE BECKER PROJECT

WHAT IT IS:

The Becker Project is a network of alumni and friends of Washington University School of Law created to connect students with experienced attorneys in any geographic market in order to cultivate new opportunities.

QUICK FACTS:

Introductions to date: 5,000

Number of cities represented: 50+

Number of alumni currently in our database: 4,000+

HOW IT WORKS:

Our office will send 3 introductions on behalf of a student to attorneys in the geographic area of their choice.

Students will be copied on the email introduction.

WHAT YOU CAN EXPECT FROM STUDENTS:

If you are available to meet, the student will directly coordinate a time to speak with you either in person or by phone. The student will provide you a resume in advance to the meeting. The students understand if your schedule does not permit a meeting in the near future. We will introduce the student to another attorney in the network.

You will not be contacted by more than three students in a six month period.

THE BECKER MISSION:

Professor David Becker has long been committed to finding employment for all students. Through The Becker Project, students are provided with as many networking opportunities as possible. Meeting with attorneys offers the best source of practical advice and opens avenues to employment.
