Jonathan Hafetz is a staff attorney with the National Security Project of the American Civil Liberties Union. Mr. Hafetz has litigated numerous post-9/11 detention cases, including Al-Marri v. Spagone, a landmark challenge to the domestic military detention of a lawful resident alien. He has also represented detainees held at Guantánamo and in Iraq. Mr. Hafetz recently helped secure the release of Mohammed Jawad who was illegally rendered, tortured, and detained at Guantánamo while a juvenile.

Mr. Hafetz writes and lectures widely about national security issues. He has also testified before Congress on detainee issues and habeas corpus. Mr. Hafetz is the co-editor of The Guantánamo Lawyers: Inside a Prison Outside the Law, a collection of narratives by lawyers involved in Guantánamo detainee litigation published by NYU Press (Nov. 2009). His book, Habeas Corpus and the Rise of the Post-9/11 Detention System, also will be published by NYU Press (Expected 2010).

Before joining the ACLU, Mr. Hafetz directed litigation for the Liberty and National Security Project of NYU's Brennan Center for Justice and, before that, was a Gibbons Fellow in Public Interest and Constitutional Law at Gibbons, P.C. He clerked for the Honorable Jed S. Rakoff, U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York, and Sandra L. Lynch, U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit.
