Susan Frelich Appleton
Lemma Barkeloo & Phoebe Couzins
Professor of Law

Appleton spoke at the 30th Congress of the International Academy of Law & Mental Health in Padua, the Annual Meeting of the Law & Society Association in Berlin, the Annual Meeting of the AALS in New York, the Inaugural Annual Midwest Family Law Conference in Indianapolis, and the U.S. Law School Initiative at the Center for Reproductive Rights in New York. She delivered the Sidney & Walter Siben Distinguished Professorship Lecture at Hofstra University School of Law. Appleton continues to serve as secretary of the American Law Institute and as a member of the AUI’s Council.

Samuel R. Bagenstos
Professor of Law

Bagenstos spoke at a number of academic conferences and continued his work as an appellate advocate. The Supreme Court granted certiorari in a case on which he had prepared the certiorari petition with the law school’s Appellate Clinic and private counsel. Bagenstos also argued a case in the Eighth Circuit, filed briefs in the Sixth, Ninth, and Tenth Circuits; and testified before the U.S. Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions in support of the Fair Pay Restoration Act. He also completed a one-year term as associate dean for faculty research and development.

During 2008-09, Bagenstos will be on leave to serve as a visiting professor at the University of Michigan and UCLA Law Schools.

David M. Becker
Associate Dean for External Relations and Joseph H. Zumberlan Professor Emeritus of the Law of Property

Cheryl Block
Professor of Law

Cheryl Block is working on a project to address federal budget transparency and accountability issues surrounding the continued and growing use of earmarks by individual members of Congress. She published a chapter on “Budget Gimmicks” in Fiscal Challenges: An Interdisciplinary Approach to Budget Policy, Cambridge University Press. She also is working on articles related to taxation, privatization, and disaster relief; elected officials and budget rhetoric; and the administration of income tax laws. During 2007–08, she presented her scholarship at several workshops and conferences and continues to lecture on taxation for Barbi Bar Review. In the St. Louis community, Block reads on a weekly basis to underprivileged preschool children through the Ready Readers Program.

Kathleen F. Brickey
James Carr Professor of Criminal Jurisprudence

Samuel W. Buell
Associate Professor of Law

Kathleen Clark
Professor of Law

Kathleen Clark presented a paper on “Government Lawyers and Confidentiality Norms” at the Law and Society Conference in Berlin, and later published the article in the Washington University Law Review. An earlier article about the legal ethics implications of the Justice Department’s August 2002 torture memorandum has been featured in two legal ethics casebooks. At the annual meeting of the AALS, Clark made presentations about congressional ethics and oversight, and the disproportionate impact of the military’s gay ban on women. At the ABA’s National Conference on Professional Responsibility in Boston, Clark moderated a panel on Representing Unpopular Clients, and, at the AALS Mid-Year Conference on Constitutional Law in Cleveland, she presented a paper on “Accountability Mechanisms and National Security Secrecy.” Clark continues to serve on the Program Committee of the University’s Center for the Study of Ethics & Human Values.

Gerrit De Geest
Professor of Law

Gerrit De Geest published “Soft Regulators, Tough Judges” (with G. Dari-Mattiauci) in the Supreme Court Economic Review and contributed an article to Encyclopedia of Law & Society on “European Association of Law and Economics”; he served as the association’s president in 2001–04. De Geest gave a lecture on “Carrots versus Sticks” at the University of Ljubljana (Slovenia); presented a paper on “The Formation of Contracts in the Draft Common Frame of Reference: A Law and Economics Perspective” at a Society of European Contract Law conference in Amsterdam; and, as general series editor, set up a second edition of the Encyclopedia of Law and Economics, Edward Elgar. De Geest continues to serve as an editor of the Review of Law and Economics; a member of both the consulting board of the European Review of Contract Law and of the Nederlands Juristenblad; and a co-editor of New Horizons in Law and Economics, Edward Elgar.

Rebecca Dresser
Daniel Noyes Kirby
Professor of Law and Professor of Ethics in Medicine

Rebecca Dresser’s writings on a variety of topics, including informed consent and abortion, apology laws and medical errors, dignity and seriously ill patients, and patient advocates in research were recently published in the George Washington University Law Review, Hastings Center Report, Human Dignity and Bioethics, and Oxford Textbook of Clinical Research Ethics. The second edition of her co-authored book, The Human Use of Animals: Case Studies in Ethical Choice, Oxford, also was published.

She is the principal investigator for “Bioethics and Cancer: When the Professional Becomes Personal,” a grant project funded by the Greenwall Foundation; a member of the Working Group on “The Ethical and Policy Implications of Attenuating Growth in Children with Profound Developmental Disabilities”; and a member of the President’s Council on Bioethics. She gave presentations at the American Society for Bioethics and Humanities Annual Meeting; Judicial Conference, Second Judicial Circuit of the United States; Cleveland Clinic; University of British Columbia; University of Pennsylvania; and Arizona State, Brown, George Washington, Indiana, and Missouri State universities.

John Drobak
George Alexander Madill
Professor of Real Property & Equity Jurisprudence; Professor of Economics; and Director, Center for Interdisciplinary Studies

Professor Katherine Goldwasser reviews a clemency petition with her research assistant Colin O’Brien. Goldwasser served as acting director of the Civil Justice Clinic in 2007–08.

Dorsey D. Ellis, Jr.
Dean Emeritus and William R. Orthwein Distinguished Professor of Law Emeritus

Dan Ellis assumed emeritus status in July 2008 (see page 24). The former dean will continue to teach one course a year and to serve as the chair of the faculty advisory committee for the new Transnational Law Program. He presented on “New Directions in U.S. Antitrust Law: The Supreme Court’s Recent Decisions” at a conference at the University of Trento in 2008. During summer 2008, he and Kim Norwood shared in teaching Introduction to American Tort & Products Liability Law, in Tokyo, Japan, at Aoyama Gakuin University. He also co-taught International and Comparative Antitrust Law at the Summer Institute for Global Justice, Utrecht.

Barbara Flagg
John S. Lehmann Research Professor (2008–09)

Barbara Flagg presented a paper titled “In Defense of Race Proportionality” at Moritz College of Law, Ohio State University, in February 2008. The presentation was part of a symposium titled The School Desegregation Cases and the Uncertain Future of Racial Equality; the paper will be published in the Ohio State Law Journal.

Frances H. Foster
Edward T. Foote II Professor of Law

Frances Foster continues her research and writing on inheritance and trust law reform. Her article, “Trust Privacy,” was published in the March 2008 issue of the Cornell Law Review. Her article, “Individualized Justice in Disputes over Dead Bodies,” has been accepted for publication in the October 2008 issue of the Vanderbilt Law Review. Foster is currently working on a comparative law article titled “American Trust Law in a Chinese Mirror.”

Katherine Goldwasser
Professor of Law
Kathy Goldwasser’s co-authored article on domestic violence remedies, “The Perils of Empowerment,” is forthcoming. During 2007–08, she served as acting director of the law school’s Civil Justice Clinic and on the Admissions Committee, and assisted with law-related educational activities in the St. Louis Public Schools. She is currently working with an interdisciplinary group of faculty on a proposal for a Violence Prevention Center.

Michael M. Greenfield
George Alexander Madill Professor of Contracts & Commercial Law
Michael Greenfield was named the George Alexander Madill Professor of Contracts & Commercial Law, as of July 1; he previously was the Walter D. Coles Professor of Law.

Greenfield was elected Regent of the American College of Consumer Financial Services Lawyers. In addition to helping oversee the renovation of Anheuser-Busch Hall, he is completing the fifth edition of his Consumer Transactions casebook, which will be published this fall.

John Owen Haley
William R. Orthwein Distinguished Professor of Law
John Haley was named the William R. Orthwein Distinguished Professor of Law, as of July 1; he previously served as the Wiley B. Rutledge Professor of Law. In spring 2008, the law school hosted a symposium in honor of Haley’s contributions to the fields of Japanese and comparative law (see page 25). He is currently working on a new book, Law’s Evolution, and the third edition of his co-authored casebook, The Civil Law Tradition: Europe, Latin America, and East Asia. Throughout 2007–08, he presented papers and published articles and book chapters on Japanese and comparative law topics. In spring 2008, he accompanied a group of 10 law students on a public service trip to Argentina.

Rebecca Hollander-Blumoff
Associate Professor of Law

Hollander-Blumoff organized a Law and Psychology Roundtable Workshop, held at the law school in April 2008, which brought together law and psychology scholars to present and comment on works-in-progress. At the workshop, Hollander-Blumoff presented “Objective Antecedents of Procedural Justice Judgments in Bilateral Negotiation.” Additionally, she organized a series of four regional junior faculty works-in-progress workshops, bringing together junior faculty from across the Midwest for intensive discussion of draft articles.

Emily Hughes
Associate Professor of Law
Emily Hughes’ article, “Taking First-Year Students to Court: Disorienting Moments as Catalysts for Change,” was selected through blind review for presentation at the New Law Teachers’ panel at the AALS conference in New York. She also presented at the Society of American Law Teachers’ Teaching for Social Change conference at Boalt Hall and at the New Directions in Clinical Education Theory and Practice Roundtable, hosted by Washington University and the Journal of Law & Policy, which will publish her article. She currently is exploring the intersection of capital mitigation, ethics, and capital defendants’ families, which she presented as a work-in-progress at the law school’s Jurisgenesis conference and at the Midwest Regional Junior Faculty workshop. Through the Capital Jury Project, she continues to study how jurors in capital cases make decisions. Hughes also taught at the Clarence Darrow Death Penalty Defense College, co-hosted by DePaul University and the University of Michigan, and moderated a panel at DePaul’s Media, Race, and the Death Penalty conference.

Peter A. Joy
Professor of Law
and Director, Criminal Justice Clinic
Peter Joy published articles and a book chapter on topics related to jailhouse informants, ABA standards for clinical faculty, criminal law clinics, evidence, and prosecutorial disclosure in the Case Western Reserve Law Review and Tennessee Law Review; the book, Development of Lawyers by Clinical Legal Education, published in Japan; and the ABA’s Criminal Justice. He gave numerous presentations on clinical education issues, including keynote lectures in Japan and South Africa and presentations at the Association of Legal Writing Directors conferences and Midwest Clinical Conference. He also consulted with the University of New Mexico School of Law on curriculum planning. Joy was named to the Society of American Law Teachers’ Board of Directors, AALS Professional Responsibility Section’s Executive Committee, and the Legal Education Study Project, sponsored by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and Stanford Law School. He serves on the board of editors of the Clinical Law Review and Washington University’s Academic Freedom and Tenure Committee.

Daniel L. Keating
Vice Dean and Tyrrell Williams Professor of Law
Daniel Keating moderated a panel at the Southeastern Association of Law Schools on intellectual property law. He also presented a paper, “Harsh Realities and Silver Linings for Retirees,” at a symposium sponsored by St. John’s University School of Law and the American Bankruptcy Institute. That paper was published in a symposium issue of the ABI Law Review in spring 2008. This past summer, Keating prepared for Aspen Publishers the fourth edition of his solely authored Sales casebook and his co-authored Commercial Transactions casebook (with Lynn LoPucki, Elizabeth Warren, and Ronald Mann). This past year, Keating chaired the law school’s Lateral Appointments Committee, which successfully hired five new lateral faculty members.

F. Scott Kieff
Professor of Law and Professor in the School of Medicine
Scott Kieff was named in February 2008 to a secondary appointment as professor in the Department of Neurological Surgery at Washington University School of Medicine. He is a member of the Governance Committee of the medical school’s Center for Innovation in Neuroscience Technology, chair of the Research Committee for the Washington University Center for the Study of Ethics and Human Values, and director of the Project on Commercializing Innovation at Stanford University’s Hoover Institution. A former member of the media- tion panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, he was appointed in December 2007 by Secretary of Commerce Carlos M. Gutierrez to serve for a three-year term on the nine-person Public Patent Advisory Committee. Recognized in May 2008 as among the Nation’s “Top 50 Under 45” by the magazine, IP Law & Business, Kieff regularly serves as a mediator, arbitrator, and consulting and testifying expert to law firms, businesses, and government agencies.

Pauline Kim
Associate Dean for Research & Faculty Development and Professor of Law
Pauline Kim, along with Margo Schlanger and Andrew Martin, was awarded a two-year National Science Foundation grant to study employment discrimination litigation involving the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in the federal district courts over a 10-year period. An essay describing the methodology used in the study was presented at an empirical research symposium and will be published in the Washington University Journal of Law & Policy. Kim is also working on an empirical study of decision-making on the federal courts of appeals. She presented this work-in-progress at faculty workshops at Washington University and Emory law schools. She also published the 2007 Supplement to her co-authored case-book, Work Law: Cases and Materials. In June 2008, she co-taught a course on Comparative Employment Law and Policy with Professor Tamara Takacs of Utrecht University School of Law at the law school’s Summer Institute for Global Justice, Utrecht. In 2007–08, she served as the John S. Lehmann Research Professor.

David Konig
Professor of History and Professor of Law
David Konig served as chair of the Law and Society Association’s J. Willard Hurst Prize Committee and as a member of the American Society for Law History’s Kathryn Preyer Prize Committee. His essay, “Regionalism in Early America Law,” appeared in Volume I of the Cambridge History of Law in America, and his article, “Arms and the Man: What Did the Right to ‘Keep’ Arms Mean in the Early Republic?,” was published in Law and History Review. He also wrote a part of the historians’ amicus brief to the Supreme Court in District of Columbia v. Dick Anthony Heller and two essays for a book he is co-editing from the law school symposium on the Dred Scott Case. He completed editorial work on Jefferson’s legal commonplace book for The Papers of Thomas Jefferson. A William Nelson Cromwell Foundation grant will support a research leave in fall 2008, when he will continue work on a biography of Jefferson, including his legal thought and practice.

Richard B. Kuhns
Professor of Law
Dick Kuhns is working on a book on the life and judging of Judge Thelton E. Henderson, U.S. District Court, Northern District of California.

D. Bruce La Pierre
Professor of Law and Director, Appellate Clinic
Bruce La Pierre taught a Comparative Federalism course with Professor Giovanni Guzzetta of the University of Rome Tor Vergata at the law school’s Summer Institute for Global Justice in Utrecht. He also taught several law courses at the Global Legal Institute in Lisbon, and he delivered lectures on Guantanamo and on the “U.S. Constitution and the Protection of Individual Rights” at Unisinos University in Brazil. As director of the Appellate Clinic, he supervised students working on cases before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit. In spring 2008, the clinic won a significant criminal sentencing case that kept their client out of prison.

C.J. Larkin
Senior Lecturer in Law and Administrative Director, Alternative Dispute Resolution Program
In 2007–08, C.J. Larkin received the Association of Missouri Mediators President’s Award for Service and a 2008 Better Business Bureau (BBB) Service Award. She continues to offer civil and family mediation trainings for attorneys; conduct mediations for... numerous community and nonprofit organizations, including the BBB, Community Conflict Services of Metropolitan St. Louis, Ethnic Mediation Council, and Equal Employment Opportunity Commission; and serve as committee member, trainer, and facilitator for the Missouri Bar Association’s Attorney–Client Resolution Committee. Larkin is a mediation supervisor for clinic students and coaches the ABA Representation in Mediation Team, which has had great success at the Regional and National levels. She continued her international work, including offering ADR trainings in Nepal and facilitating law school opportunities in the Netherlands, India, and Thailand. Her co-authored article on “Cross-Cultural Issues in Mediation” was published in the Association for Conflict Resolution (ACR) magazine.

Stephen H. Legomsky
John S. Lehmann
University Professor
Steve Legomsky served a six-month visiting appointment at the National University of Singapore, where he wrote an article, now published in the Stanford Law Review, on asylum and the theory of adjudicative consistency. He also advised the Justice Minister of South Korea on immigration reform, delivered the keynote address to a conference of Asian and European Cabinet ministers, and lectured at two Korean universities. He met with U.N. officials and Burmese NGO leaders at refugee camps in Malaysia, and gave presentations at three workshops and one conference in Singapore. Legomsky published a supplement to his immigration and refugee coursebook; produced chapters in three edited books on migration and refugee policy, published in the U.K., Germany, and Spain; and published several articles. He gave numerous other presentations, including those at Harvard, University of Connecticut, University of Florida, University of Miami, and University of Virginia; the Australian Institute of Administrative Law in Melbourne; the University of Athens; and the National Police Foundation in Washington, D.C.

Ronald M. Levin
Henry Hitchcock
Professor of Law
Ronald Levin is serving as the ABA advisor to the drafting committee to revise the Model State Administrative Procedure Act, sponsored by the Uniform Law Commission. He also is a reporter for the ABA’s Project on the Administrative Law of the European Union. Levin and his co-reporters are publishing a volume on EU judicial review. He presented comparisons between U.S. and EU judicial review of administrative action at a Law and Society Association meeting in Berlin. Additionally, Levin served on the ABA’s Administrative Law Section’s annual award for scholarship committee and a task force that is preparing a report containing the section’s policy recommendations to the winner of the 2008 presidential election. Levin and Michael Asimow of UCLA School of Law published a 2007 Supplement to their casebook, State and Federal Administrative Law.

Jo Ellen Lewis
Senior Lecturer in Law
Jo Ellen Lewis is serving a five-year appointment as a Fulbright Senior Specialist. She was a visiting lecturer in Japan and has been invited to teach a short course in the Global Legal Studies program at Universidade Catolica Portuguesa in Lisbon, Portugal, in fall 2008. Lewis regularly presents at legal writing conferences nationally and internationally. She continues to serve as the advisor for the Wiley Rutledge Moot Court.

Maxine Lipeles
Senior Lecturer in Law and Director, Interdisciplinary Environmental Clinic
Maxine Lipeles was awarded a Women’s Justice Award by the St. Louis Daily Record. St. Louis Magazine also named her one of the “Best Lawyers” in environmental law and cited the Interdisciplinary Environmental Clinic for its exemplary work. Lipeles presented a talk, together with Biology Professor Barbara Schaal, on the “Science and Law of Climate Change,” sponsored by the Association of Women Faculty. She also presented on “Operating in a Carbon-Constrained Economy—The Public Interest Perspective” at an Associated Industries of Missouri Conference and on “The Unexpected Environmentalist,” sponsored by the Environmental Social Work Initiative. In 2007–08, the clinic won several environmental victories related to the prevention of air pollution and global warming.

Daniel Mandelker
Howard A. Stamper
Professor of Law
Daniel Mandelker received the Daniel J. Curtin Lifetime Achievement Award from the ABA’s Section of State and Local Government. LexisNexis pub-
Andrew Martin published work and presented at conferences in the field of empirical legal studies, including on judicial ideology and voting records. His articles appeared in the Northwestern University Law Review; Judicature; and Journal of Law, Economics, and Organization. He also received the Pi Sigma Alpha award for the best paper delivered at the 2007 meeting of the Midwest Political Science Association.

Martin and other Center for Empirical Research in the Law faculty were awarded three National Science Foundation grants to support research projects on litigation in the federal district courts, decision-making in the U.S. Supreme Court, and a pilot study of institutional legitimacy of constitutional courts across the globe. Martin also was recognized for the third time by the Graduate School of Arts & Sciences for Excellence in Mentoring. He is the associate editor of Political Analysis, and sits on the editorial board of Legislative Studies Quarterly. He also serves on the executive committee of the AALS Law & Social Sciences Section.

Charles R. McManis
Professor of Law; Director, Intellectual Property & Technology Law Program; and Director, Center for Research on Innovation & Entrepreneurship

Bayh-Dole Act at an international conference at the University of Southern Taiwan. Both articles will eventually be published as book chapters. While in Taiwan, McManis lectured at six other universities and met with law alumni. In April 2008, he chaired an interdisciplinary academic conference at the law school on the topic, Open-Source and Proprietary Models of Innovation: Beyond Ideology, at which he also presented a paper. The papers will be published in a 10th anniversary volume of the Washington University Journal of Law & Policy.

Carl Minzner
Associate Professor of Law

Carl Minzner presented a paper on Chinese judicial disciplinary systems at both a conference at Harvard and at the University of Michigan. He moderated a panel on Chinese domestic politics at a Council on Foreign Relations event in New York and spoke on Chinese legal and political developments at a conference in Idaho. In summer 2008, he was in Shanghai and Beijing. He is currently finishing an article on Chinese administrative and judicial management systems and working to enhance Washington University relations with Chinese law schools.

Kimberly Jade Norwood
Professor of Law and Professor of African & African American Studies

Professor Norwood was the keynote speaker at the Thurgood Marshall School of Law Symposium on Education & the Bewilderment of Race. Her paper on the failure to educate black male students and student-athletes will appear in the symposium’s journal publication. She also discussed “Examining the Diversity Pipeline to the Legal Profession” at a Mound City Bar Association retreat. Norwood continued her high school pipeline program, as well as her work with teachers in the St. Louis Public Schools, as part of a continuing education program funded by a Department of Education grant. Her seven-hour lecture presentation was on “Education and Black America from Slavery through the Reconstruction.” In summer 2008, she continued her public interest student externship program in Accra, Ghana, and co-taught Introduction to Products Liability Law and Torts, at Aoyama Gakuin University’s law and undergraduate schools in Tokyo. While in Japan, Norwood also lectured at Waseda University.

Troy Paredes
Professor of Law

Troy Paredes was nominated by President George W. Bush to serve as Commissioner at the Securities and Exchange Commission. He recently published the fourth edition of Volume II of his co-authored treatise, Securities Regulation (with Louis Loss and Joel Seligman), and is currently working on the fourth edition of Volume III. His edited volume, The “New” Corporate Governance, is forthcoming (Cambridge University Press).

Stanley L. Paulson
William Gardiner Hammond Professor of Law and Professor of Philosophy

Stanley L. Paulson held guest lectures and participated in conferences, over the past academic year, on four continents—from Antwerp, Brisbane, and Catanzaro (in Calabria, the toe of the Italian boot) to Urbana, Würzburg, and Zurich. In 2007–08, just as in 2006–07, Paulson published nearly a dozen articles and reviews. In November 2007, he delivered 12 lectures on Hans Kelsen’s legal philosophy to a hand-picked group of law professors and doctoral candidates (some of them Kelsen specialists themselves) at the University of Oslo. In March 2008, he delivered a comparable set of lectures to a group of law professors and doctoral candidates at the Universidad Externado de Colombia in Bogotá. The law editors at the Oxford University Press have invited Paulson and his wife, Bonnie, to serve as the editors of an Oxford edition of Kelsen’s collected works.

Neil Richards
Professor of Law

Neil Richards was awarded tenure by the University effective July 1, 2008. His article, “Privacy’s Other Path: Recovering the Law of Confidentiality” (co-authored with Daniel J. Solove), was published by the Georgetown Law Journal, and his article, “Intellectual Privacy,” will appear in the Texas Law Review. Richards wrote a number of shorter articles as well, including an intellectual biography of the late Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, which will appear in the West Encyclopedia of the Supreme Court. Richards also gave scholarly presentations at the University of Illinois, University of Missouri, Washington University, Loyola (LA), Oklahoma City University, and the University of Oregon.

In connection with a local law firm, Richards successfully represented a St. Louis-based fantasy baseball company in high-profile litigation with Major League Baseball, regarding the proper balance between the First Amendment and the “right of publicity” of professional baseball players. The Supreme Court recently declined to review the Eighth Circuit opinion holding for Richards’ client.

Laura Rosenbury Professor of Law
Laura Rosenbury was awarded tenure by the University effective July 1, 2008. During the past year, she published her article, “Friends with Benefits?,” in the Michigan Law Review and presented papers at various conferences and law schools, including the International Congress on Law and Mental Health in Padua, Italy; the Law and Society Annual Conference in Berkeley, California; Syracuse Law School; University of Chicago Law School; University of Michigan Law School; and the University of California at Berkeley Institute for the Study of Social Change.

Adam H. Rosenzweig Associate Professor of Law
Adam Rosenzweig’s research focuses on domestic and international tax policy, particularly with respect to private investment funds. His paper “Harnessing the Costs of International Tax Arbitrage” was recently published in the Virginia Tax Review, and his co-authored essay, “Anachronisms in Subchapter K of Internal Revenue Code: Is it Time to Part with Section 736?” Northwestern Law Review, has been cited as one of the leading commentaries on the issue by both scholars and practitioners. He has works in progress on the intersection of international tax policy and modern financial markets, and on the game theory of international tax relations. Rosenzweig has recently presented papers at conferences or workshops at Loyola at Los Angeles, Northwestern University, Texas Wesleyan, New York University, and Washington University law schools. He is a co-author on the recently published seventh edition of the Aspen casebook Problems and Materials in Federal Income Taxation.

Leila Nadya Sadat
Henry H. Oberschelp Professor of Law and Director, Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute
In 2007–08, Leila Nadya Sadat became director of the law school’s Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute, which sponsored several major conferences, workshops, and lectures throughout the year. Sadat’s co-edited book, The Theory and Practice of International Criminal Law: Essays in Honor of M. Cherif Bassiouni, (Martinus Nijhoff Publishers) was recently published. Her many publications include: “Shattering the Nuremberg Consensus,” Yale Journal of International Affairs; “Extraordinary Rendition, Torture, and Other Nightmares from the War on Terror,” George Washington University Law Review; and the foreword to the Washington University Global Studies Law Review issue dedicated to the Harris Institute’s Nuremberg symposium. She also presented numerous papers and published several book chapters and reports on international criminal law topics. Sadat continues to direct and teach in the Summer Institute for Global Justice, Utrecht, and to advise the Jessup International Law Moot Court Team, which had another highly successful year. In spring 2008, she was named chair of the board of the International Law Students Association.

Margo Schlanger Professor of Law and Director, Civil Rights Litigation Clearinghouse
Margo Schlanger was voted the 2008 David M. Becker Professor of the Year. She published and/or has articles forthcoming in the Vanderbilt Law Review; Journal of Tort Law; Washington University Journal of Law & Policy; University of Pennsylvania Journal of Constitutional Law; and Law and Contemporary Problems. She co-chaired a national conference on Prison Litigation, in Washington, D.C.; serves as reporter to the ABA’s ongoing revisions of standards governing the legal treatment of prisoners; testified before Congress and the Prison Rape Elimination Commission about prisoners’ rights issues; and chaired the AALS Section on Law and the Social Sciences. Her project with Professors Kim and Martin, on Equal Employment Opportunity Litigation Brought by the Federal Government, received National Science Foundation funding. Over the past year, the online Civil Rights Litigation Clearinghouse continued to expand, incorporating hundreds of previously unavailable immigration and equal employment class actions.

Schlanger will be on leave in 2008-09, serving as visiting professor of law at the University of Michigan and UCLA.

Kent D. Syverud
Dean and Ethan A.H. Shepley University Professor

In spring 2008, Kent Syverud gave plenary addresses on “Law Schools and Their Universities” at the annual meeting of the Law School Admission Council and on “Business, Professions, and the Common Good” at a conference at Wake Forest University sponsored by its professional schools. He also chaired the ABA accreditation site visit team for the Duke Law School. He served on the planning committee for three 2008 AALS conferences: the New Law Teachers Conference; the Workshop on Retention of Minority Law Teachers; and the Workshop for New Clinical Law Teachers. He chairs the 2009 Deans’ Workshop of the ABA. Dean Syverud taught three courses in the spring semester 2008 and will teach The Law of Higher Education in fall 2008. He is currently leading planning efforts for University-wide academic programs in Washington, D.C. and New York.

Karen L. Tokarz
Charles Nagel Professor of Public Interest Law & Public Service; Professor of African & African American Studies; and Director, Alternative Dispute Resolution Program

Karen Tokarz was named the Charles Nagel Professor of Public Interest Law and Public Service in spring 2008 (see page 26). In July 2008, she stepped down as Clinical Education Program director. After a sabbatical in 2008-09, she will focus on building the Alternative Dispute Resolution Program and Africa Public Interest Law & Dispute Resolution Initiative. As a Fulbright Senior Specialist, she is assisting the University of KwaZulu-Natal in Durban, South Africa, with developing their dispute resolution master’s program. She also helped place law students in summer externships in South Africa, Cambodia, and Thailand. Tokarz received the 2008 Clinical Legal Education Association Outstanding Advocate Award. At the law school, she organized a New Directions in Clinical Education roundtable. The roundtable papers, including her co-authored article on community lawyering, will be published in the Washington University Journal of Law & Policy. Tokarz also coordinated the eighth annual Access to Equal Justice Colloquium on fair housing and immigration issues, and the 10th annual Public Interest Law & Policy Speakers Series.

Peter J. Wiedenbeck
Professor of Law

Peter Wiedenbeck completed his term as associate dean of faculty in summer 2007. He contributed to a study of the role of politics in Supreme Court tax decisions with co-authors Nancy Staudt and Lee Epstein. The findings were published as “The Ideological Component of Judging in the Taxation Context,” in the Washington University Law Review. His book, ERISA in the Courts, was published by the Federal Judicial Center. Wiedenbeck is currently working with Harvard Professor William D. Andrews to prepare a new (sixth) edition of the casebook Basic Federal Income Taxation for publication by Aspen Law & Business.

Parades Named SEC Commissioner

Professor Troy Paredes has been appointed by President Bush to serve as a Commissioner on the Securities and Exchange Commission and will be on leave from Washington University Law.

“Troy Paredes is an extraordinary lawyer, teacher, and scholar who cares about well-functioning securities markets,” said Kent Syverud, dean and the Ethan A.H. Shepley University Professor. “He will make an excellent SEC Commissioner.”

Paredes’s expertise focuses on issues relating to securities regulation and corporate governance. He is the co-author (beginning with the fourth edition) of the leading securities law treatise (with Joel Seligman and the late Louis Loss) and has written extensively on a wide range of topics, including the importance of a balanced approach to securities regulation.

Before joining the law school faculty, Paredes was a corporate and regulatory lawyer. As an attorney, he worked on a variety of transactions, including leveraged buyouts, mergers and acquisitions, and private equity and other financings, as well as on regulatory matters in the electric industry.