INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS and the work of the Harris Institute at Washington University Law are guided by an active International Council, consisting of leading scholars, practitioners, and jurists from around the world.

ELIZABETH ANDERSEN
Executive Director & Executive Vice President, American Society of International Law

THE HONORABLE JOHN B. ANDERSON
President & CEO, World Federalist Association

THE HONORABLE LOUISE ARBOUR
U.N. High Commissioner for Human Rights

THE HONORABLE JORGE ARRATE
Former Cabinet Minister, Chile

PROFESSOR M. CHERIF BASSIOUNI
President, International Human Rights Law Institute, DePaul University College of Law

PROFESSOR GEORGE A. BERMANN
Jean Monnet Professor of EU Law, Walter Gelhorn Professor of Law, Columbia University

THE HONORABLE PROFESSOR RUDOLF BERNHARDT
Former President, European Court of Human Rights

PROFESSOR RAJ BHALA
Raymond F. Rice Distinguished Professor of Law, University of Kansas

PROFESSOR PAUL P. CRAIG
Professor of English Law, Oxford University

DR. FRANCIS MADING DENG
Research Professor of International Politics, Law and Society, Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS)

DAVID W. DETJEN
Partner, Alston & Bird

PROFESSOR THOMAS M. FRANCK
Murry and Ida Becker Professor of Law, New York University

THE HONORABLE RICHARD J. GOLDSTONE
Former Justice, Constitutional Court of South Africa, and former Chief Prosecutor, International Criminal Tribunals for the Former Yugoslavia and for Rwanda

AMBASSADOR AÍDA IVONE GONZÁLEZ MARTÍNEZ
Former Chairperson, U.N. Committee for the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women

WHITNEY R. HARRIS
Former Trial Counsel, International Military Tribunal at Nuremberg

RICHARD C. HOTTELET
Former foreign correspondent, CBS

JUNG-GUN KIM
Former Dean, Yonsei University Graduate School of Intellectual Property & Law

ANTHONY LEWIS
Former syndicated columnist, New York Times

THE HONORABLE PROFESSOR HERBERT H.P. MA
Former Grand Justice, Taiwan Judicial Yuan

DR. SUSAN F. MARTIN
Donald G. Herzberg Associate Professor of International Migration, Georgetown University

THE HONORABLE H.E. HISASHI OWADA
Judge, International Court of Justice

THE RIGHT HONORABLE SIR GEOFFREY PALMER
Former Prime Minister, New Zealand

PROFESSOR ASHA RAMGOBIN
Professor of Law and Director of the Law Clinic, University of KwaZulu-Natal

THE HONORABLE PATRICIA M. WALD
Former Judge, U.N. International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia, and former Chief Judge, U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit

PROFESSOR RUTH WEDGWOOD
Edward B. Burling Professor of International Law and Diplomacy, Johns Hopkins University

PROFESSOR JOSEPH H.H. WEILER
Jean Monnet Professor of Law, Chair and Faculty Director of the Hauser Global Law School Program, New York University School of Law

MEMBERS OF THE INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL are active supporters of and participants in international and comparative law programs at the law school.

(Above left) The Honorable Herbert Ma helped judge a final round of the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition.

(Above right) The Honorable Patricia M. Wald, a frequent visitor to the law school, most recently spoke at the 2006 Nuremberg conference.
It is my great honor to assume the Directorship of the Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute at this important juncture in the Institute and the law school’s history.

THE INSTITUTE, and Washington University Law, located squarely in the heart of America, have always been ahead of the curve in predicting, analyzing, and reacting to world events. The coming year will be no exception.

AT WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW we have a distinguished tradition in both international and comparative law. Our dearly beloved William (Bill) Jones went to China decades ago, well before it became fashionable to do so. His translation of the great Qing Code is now required reading for Chinese law specialists. We held a major interdisciplinary conference on European Monetary Union in 1997 when many experts were debating whether or not monetary union would ever exist. My own work on the International Criminal Court, generously supported by Washington University Law, was done when the prevailing wisdom was that the ICC Treaty would take “decades” to come into force. We now run the premier summer program on international justice in The Netherlands along with our partner schools, and many of our students visit the ICC every year.

Washington University Law has always had a comparative and international law faculty that spanned the globe. That tradition continues today as the law school’s highly trained and respected comparativists work in Australia, China, Cuba, France, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, India, Japan, Korea, Malawi, Malaysia, Nepal, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Russia, Rwanda, Singapore, South Africa, Taiwan, and the United Kingdom. Some have specialized training in foreign legal systems, and are fluent or conversant in several languages. Others are advising foreign governments, such as Stephen Legomsky, the John S. Lehmann University Professor, who is currently counseling the South Korean Minister of Justice on immigration reform.

Our public and private international law faculty teach courses that address the most significant issues of the day—human rights during times of terror, the laws of war, international intellectual property law, climate change and environmental degradation, international trade and development, transnational corporate governance,
ALUMNI PERSPECTIVE

Marguerite Roy, J.D. 2007

- Head of Office, United Nations, Mazar-e-Sharif, Afghanistan
- 2005-2007 Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court team
- 2006 Summer Institute for Global Justice, Utrecht

“Before law school, I worked for the U.N. in a variety of roles. My time at Washington University, coupled with the ability to work and study abroad, enhanced my opportunities by giving me the legal knowledge, skills, and credentials to continue my career in public international civil service.”

COURSE OFFERINGS

The law school offers a wide variety of courses and seminars in international and comparative law. Course offerings may vary from year to year, depending upon enrollment and professor availability.

- American Indian Law
- Antitrust
- Atrocity Law
- Comparative Constitutional & Administrative Law
- Comparative Competition Law
- Comparative Federalism
- Comparative Law
- Conflict of Laws
- Constitutional Courts
- European Union Law
- The Future of International Humanitarian Law
- Global Warming & the Law
- History of European Law
- Immigrants’ Rights
- Immigration Law
- International Business Transactions
- International Courts & Tribunals
- International Criminal Law
- International Human Rights Law
- International Intellectual Property Law
- International Investment Law
- International Law
- International Legal Process
- International Organizations
- International Tax Policy
- Law & Terrorism
- National Security Law
- Readings in Japanese Law
- Socialist Law in Transition
- Terrorism & Human Rights
- Transnational Litigation
- War Crimes

international business transactions, immigration and refugee law, international human rights, and U.S. foreign relations and national security law.

Our students travel abroad in significant numbers, and more than 70 foreign students from at least 20 countries come to the law school to study each year. With assistance from our Africa Public Interest Law & Conflict Resolution Project, more than 50 students have worked with public interest law offices in South Africa providing free legal aid to low-income people, and the law school is part of the Academic Consortium providing assistance to the Special Court for Sierra Leone. Our alumni are working in Europe, Asia, Latin America, Africa, and the Middle East, and many occupy very distinguished positions in their countries of origin or as U.S. lawyers working abroad. Those remaining in the United States are among the vanguard of new lawyers able to employ in their legal careers the international and comparative law skills they developed here. We are poised to launch the first truly innovative Transnational Law Program with Utrecht University as our partner, a program that will prepare and qualify students for multi-jurisdictional practice in the United States and Europe.

The Harris Institute is proud to be part of this fine tradition. Initiated by Professor Stephen Legomsky in 1999, and renamed for former Nuremberg prosecutor and philanthropist Whitney R. Harris on February 7, 2002, the Institute has held conferences every year that bring together the finest minds in international and comparative law to discuss the topics of the day. This past year we held a major conference celebrating the 60th anniversary of the Nuremberg Judgment, convening scholars, practitioners, politicians, and diplomats to look back as well as forward at the future of international criminal justice. His Excellency Judge Philippe Kirsch, President of the International Criminal Court, received the first “World Peace Through Law Award,” bestowed upon him by Whitney Harris at the conference’s final banquet. U.S. Senator Christopher Dodd closed the proceedings by emphasizing the importance of the Nuremberg principles during an extraordinary and moving address to the international statesmen, judges, lawyers, philosophers, and academics who were in attendance.

Next May we will celebrate the work of the Institute’s outgoing Director, John O. Haley, with a Festschrift convening the leading experts in Japanese law from around the country and, indeed, the world. We also participated in the International Humanitarian Law Dialogs celebrating the 100th anniversary of the 1907 Hague Convention, and are hosting our first Ambassador-in-Residence, Her Excellency Carla Hills, former U.S. Trade Representative, who will be delivering the Tyrrell Williams lecture in the spring. The Institute’s first workshop in public international law and legal theory, co-sponsored by the Project on Norms in International Criminal Law, will take place in January, and we are now accepting applications for a research fellow, who will be teaching and undertaking major research projects under the auspices of the Institute and the law school.

Finally, I am pleased to welcome the Institute’s new Executive Director, Michael Peil, who also serves as Assistant Dean for International Programs at the law school. Michael comes to us after five years as Executive Director of the International Law Students Association, a position in which he worked with faculty and students at more than 700 law schools in over 100 countries and administered the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition. Michael has already brought his extraordinary talent and energy to the Institute and Washington University Law more generally, and I look forward to working with him on program development.

While it may seem surprising to think of a small Midwestern university as a hub of cosmopolitanism, recall that the great international lawyer Manley O. Hudson was born in St. Peters, Missouri, and that it was at the 1904 World’s Fair in Saint Louis that the Interparliamentary Union issued its appeal for peace that resulted in the convening of the 1907 Hague Peace Conference. The values of social justice, peace, international cooperation, and international understanding have deep roots in our heartland soil. These have found expression in our programs, our scholarship, our faculty, and our students. At the crossroads of America, Washington University and Washington University Law lead the world in delivering an outstanding education, conducting cutting-edge research, and developing new technologies to enhance quality of life. At the same time, we maintain our commitment to the world’s poor, to the eradication of diseases and wars that plague the planet, and to the construction of a stable, equitable, and peaceful international legal order.

Meet us in Saint Louis! We look forward to welcoming you here.

Sincerely,

Leila Nadya Sadat
Henry H. Oberschelp Professor of Law
Director, Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute

ALUMNI PERSPECTIVE

Yewande Akinwolemiwa, J.D. 2006
Associate, Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld, LLP, Dallas, Texas
2004 Dagen-Legomsky Hague Fellow
2005 semester abroad at University of KwaZulu Natal, Durban

“I came to Washington University Law determined to explore international law and issues, and my expectations were surpassed. I found the scope and diversity of the study abroad programs tremendously satisfying. The international courses and programs also provided me with a wonderful opportunity to deepen my passion for global issues like HIV/AIDS. The exciting and enriching experiences I gained at Washington University continue to serve me in my career with an international law firm.”
S

TUDENTS from around the world have participated in one of the law school’s three world-renowned LL.M. Programs. The LL.M. in Intellectual Property and Technology Law (IP/TL) is one of only ten such programs nationwide, and allows students to study introductory and advanced intellectual property and technology law and to scrutinize the policies affecting intellectual property and technology law under the guidance of leading scholars in the field. The LL.M. Program in U.S. Law provides foreign attorneys with a broad and thorough perspective on American law. The LL.M. Program in Taxation provides comprehensive and specialized training to lawyers and law school graduates who plan to specialize in tax and other tax-related fields. Our Judicial Observation Program allows LL.M. graduates to intern with federal and state judges in St. Louis for six weeks during the summer after graduation. The law school’s graduates hail from over 60 countries on six continents. These graduates include our J.D., LL.M., and J.S.D. students.

1. ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI Each year, the law school welcomes dozens of foreign law students, practitioners, and scholars to one of our three LL.M. programs, as exchange students, or as Visiting Scholars. In addition, each summer the school hosts its Summer Institute in U.S. Law, bringing law students from around the world to St. Louis for a two-week intensive course in legal English, U.S. and common-law principles, and U.S. legal education methods.

2. TORONTO, CANADA The law school participates in the Niagara International Moot Court Competition, an international legal simulation involving law schools from across Canada and the United States. The Niagara focuses on legal disputes between the United States and Canada.

3. WASHINGTON, DC Students may work for a semester in the Congressional & Administrative Law Program. This gives students exposure to the federal, legislative, and administrative apparatus, and dramatically enhances their career-building opportunities. In addition, the law school annually fields one of the best U.S. teams in the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition.

4. SOUTH DAKOTA Through the American Indian Law and Economic Development Externship, students are able to spend the summer living and working on the Cheyenne River Indian Reservation in South Dakota. They work with lawyers in the tribe’s legal department to help safeguard the tribe’s rights and develop its legal institutions, infrastructure, and economy.

5. SALTA, ARGENTINA Ten students will travel to Salta, Argentina in March 2008 as part of the law school’s inaugural “Alternative Spring Break” program. The students will perform community service projects in urban and rural environments in northern Argentina.

6. UTRECHT, THE NETHERLANDS Students have the opportunity to enroll in the annual Summer Institute for Global Justice, co-sponsored with Utrecht University and Case Western Reserve University School of Law. The Summer Institute is an intensive, six-week course focusing on international and comparative law, and features a distinguished faculty drawn from top practitioners and scholars around the world. Students have the opportunity to visit the international institutions in The Hague and the European Union institutions in Brussels, and to study in small classroom settings with world-famous international judges, prosecutors, and lawyers. Students also have the opportunity to study abroad at Utrecht University’s top-ranked faculty of law under the law school’s exchange program.

7. THE HAGUE Under the annual Dagen-Legomsky Hague Fellow Program, one student attends the world-class Hague Academy in International Law each summer. In addition, several students have interned for the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia.

8. LISBON, PORTUGAL Students have the opportunity to study at the Universidade Católica Portuguesa, which has one of the most innovative international programs in Europe.

9. ACCRA, GHANA Under the aegis of the Africa Public Service Initiative, students travel to Ghana during the summer to work with the Legal Resource Centre, providing legal and public aid services in support of institutional development.
Several students work at the Legal Aid Board and other legal services offices in South Africa every summer. In addition, several law students have spent a semester abroad at University of KwaZulu-Natal, studying South African and international environmental, labor, constitutional, and public-health law.

DURBAN, SOUTH AFRICA

Several students work at the Legal Aid Board and other legal services offices in South Africa every summer. In addition, several law students have spent a semester abroad at University of KwaZulu-Natal, studying South African and international environmental, labor, constitutional, and public-health law.

ARUSHA, TANZANIA

Graduates of the law school presently serve at the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda, located in Arusha, Tanzania, and several others have interned there.

NAIROBI, KENYA

Students work with the Legal Resources Centre undertaking summer public service projects.

JERUSALEM, ISRAEL

In 2007, one student spent the summer clerking for the Israeli Supreme Court in Jerusalem.

MUMBAI, INDIA

The law school is one of the first U.S. law schools to compete in the D.M. Harish International Moot Court Competition, one of the most prestigious moot court competitions in India.

DELHI, INDIA

Students work during the summer with the Human Rights Network, providing legal and public-health services in Delhi.

KATHMANDU, NEPAL

The law school has long-standing relationships with two law schools and several NGOs in Nepal, under which students participate in constitutional and institution-building summer internships in the country. In addition, under a State Department grant, students have worked with the law school’s ADR faculty to promote alternative dispute resolution in Nepal, and several delegations of Nepalese lawyers and civil-society leaders have visited the law school.

PHNOM PENH, CAMBODIA

Under the Dagen-Legomsky International Public Interest Fellowship program, one student each year receives funding to work in a top-tier public-interest program abroad. Our 2007 Public Interest Fellow worked with UNICEF in Phnom Penh, Cambodia.

SINGAPORE

Several students each year study abroad at the National University of Singapore, one of the top law schools in the world. Their studies typically focus on Pacific Rim business and transactional law.

BEIJING, CHINA

The law school has hosted several delegations, Visiting Scholars, and speakers from China. In addition, Chinese students make up the majority of our Masters of Law candidates. Parlaying these connections, many students have opted to study, work, or intern in China.

SEOUL, KOREA

Each year, we welcome several Korean judges and practitioners to the law school as Visiting Scholars. Several students have interned for private- and public-sector employers in Korea during their summers.

TOKYO, JAPAN

Several faculty members travel each year to lecture at Japanese universities, and several students have taken advantage of the law school’s close relations with Japanese institutions to work, intern, and study in Japan. Through a special relationship with the Japanese Supreme Court, we welcome Visiting Scholars from the Japanese judiciary each year. Washington University Law students also have interned with the Diet (national legislature) in Japan, utilizing faculty connections in that country.
FACULTY

KATHLEEN CLARK
Professor of Law
Kathleen Clark is an expert on national security law, legal ethics, and anti-corruption measures. She has served as an ethics consultant for the United Nations Development Program and the ABA’s Europe and Eurasia Program (CEELI), and has led ethics workshops in Europe, Africa, and South America. A member of the American Law Institute, Clark is past chair of the National Security Law Section of the Association of American Law Schools, and has served on the board of Servicemembers Legal Defense Network.

GERRIT DE GEEST
Professor of Law
Gerrit De Geest specializes in comparative law and in law and economics. Before joining the law faculty in 2007, he was a professor of law and economics at Utrecht University in The Netherlands. Past president of the European Association of Law and Economics, he is a member of the European Group on an Integrated Contract Law and of the Economic Impact Group of the Common Principles of European Contract Law. He is co-editor of the Review of Law and Economics and consultant editor of the European Review of Contract Law. He has published widely in the fields of economic analysis of contract law, tort law, and comparative law.

JOHN N. DROBAK
George Alexander Madill Professor of Law, Professor of Economics, and Director, Center for Interdisciplinary Studies
John Drobak is a pioneer in interdisciplinary study, ranging from his leadership role with the Center for Interdisciplinary Studies to the course he co-teaches with Nobel Laureate (Economics) Douglass North to his many joint programs with other departments on campus. He has served as a consultant to the governments of Czechoslovakia and the Republic of Georgia; secretary and Executive Committee board member for the Society for New Institutional Economics; and as a fifteen-year member of the M.B.A faculty for the Business School in Prague. His recent scholarship includes extensive work on privatization and democratization.

DORSEY D. ELLIS, JR.
William R. Orthwein Distinguished Professor of Law
Dorsey D. Ellis, Jr., served as dean of the law school for more than a decade. His teaching and scholarship focus on the areas of torts and antitrust. In recent years he has taught in England, Japan, New Zealand, and The Netherlands; has published on U.S. antitrust law throughout the world; and has taught comparative Competition Law in the law school’s Summer Institute for Global Justice. He also participated in the 2004 APEC Competition Policy Conference in Tokyo.

FRANCES H. FOSTER
Edward T. Foote II Professor of Law
Frances Foster specializes in the legal systems of socialist and former socialist countries and in trusts and estates. In early ground-breaking work, she compared approaches to inheritance in the United States and China, based on her original translations of Chinese inheritance cases. She is a member of the Board of Directors of the American Society of Comparative Law and an associate member of the International Academy of Comparative Law.

LEIGH HUNT GREENHAW
Senior Lecturer in Law
Leigh Hunt Greenhaw teaches the law school’s Introduction to U.S. Law, an intensive, two-semester course for foreign Masters degree and exchange students. She brings varied U.S. experience as a judicial clerk, legal services lawyer, civil litigator in private practice, legal writing instructor, and constitutional law professor to bear, teaching distinctive aspects of U.S. legal methods through the written resolution of legal problems. An expert in religion and the U.S. Constitution, she has published and taught comparative religious liberty law.

STEVEN GUNN
Associate Professor of Law and Director of American Indian Law & Economic Development Program
An expert in American Indian law, Steven Gunn has represented American Indian tribes in actions to protect their land, resources, rights, and cultural heritage, including a recent case representing the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe. He has worked with students to coordinate a symposium on contemporary and comparative perspectives on the rights of indigenous peoples. Gunn directs the American Indian Law & Economic Development

INTERNATIONAL MOOT COURT EXCELS
The Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition is the largest moot court competition in the world, involving over 600 law schools from nearly 100 countries. Washington University School of Law fields one of the top U.S. teams in the Competition. Our teams have advanced to the International Rounds of the Jessup five times in the last nine years, and have won several awards in recent years. The team placed third in the world in 2007 and has been awarded the Evans Award (for best written submissions at the International Rounds), the Dillard Award (for best written submissions in the world), and the Baxter Award (for best respondent submission in the world). Coached by Professors Leila Sadat and Gilbert Sison, the five-person team is selected by competitive tryouts in the fall. It is one of the more popular competitions among law school students.

(ABOVE) JESSUP TEAM MEMBERS Marguerite Roy and Luke McLaurin with the 2007 Baxter Award.
Externship, in which students spend a summer assisting with legal work and living on the Cheyenne River Indian Reservation in South Dakota. He has served as chair of the AALS Section on Indian Nations and Indigenous Peoples and vice chair for public service of the ABA Native American Resources Committee.

JOHN OWEN HALEY
Wiley B. Rutledge Professor of Law

John Haley is one of the nation’s outstanding international and comparative law scholars and is widely credited with having popularized Japanese legal studies. He has been teaching for more than 30 years at law schools in the United States and abroad. His numerous scholarly works span issues ranging from international trade policy and comparative law to Japanese land-use law, Japanese and East Asian business transactions, and Japanese law and contemporary society. A member of the American Law Institute, he is the author or editor of nine books or monographs, including several leading books in Japanese and comparative law topics. For several years, he directed the law school’s Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute, organizing conferences on topics ranging from corporate governance to U.S.-China business relationships. Haley serves on the Board of Trustees and Executive Committee of the Society for Japanese Studies and the Executive Committee for the American Society of Comparative Law.

PETER A. JOY
Professor of Law and Director, Criminal Justice Clinic

Peter Joy is well known for his work in clinical legal education, legal ethics, and trial practice. The inaugural director of the law school’s Trial & Advocacy Program, he also teaches a Comparative Legal Ethics Seminar. He serves on the AALS Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure and on the ABA Section on Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar’s Clinic and Skills Training Committee, and he is past chair of the AALS Clinical Education Section and past president of the Clinical Legal Education Association. He is on the Board of Editors of the Clinical Law Review, and he is a contributing editor to Criminal Justice, a quarterly publication of the ABA. Professor Joy is active in developing clinical legal education in Japan, publishing and teaching extensively on the subject, and has lectured in Australia, Canada, Indonesia, Japan, and South Africa on clinical education and legal ethics topics.

F. SCOTT KIEFF
Professor of Law

An expert in intellectual property law, F. Scott Kieff has spent many years as both a practitioner and academic on international and comparative aspects of innovation. Regularly teaching, conducting research, and consulting on policy and practice across most of the industrialized world, Kieff also holds faculty appointments at Stanford University’s Hoover Institution and the Munich Intellectual Property Law Center at Germany’s Max Planck Institute. He is also as a member of the IP Modeling Group at the Canadian Centre for Intellectual Property Policy at McGill University Faculty of Law.

MICHAEL H. KOB
Director of the Trial & Advocacy Program, Associate Director of Legal Practice, and Senior Lecturer in Law

Michael Koby teaches the law school’s Introduction to U.S. Law, an intensive, two-semester course for foreign Masters and exchange students. He has lectured in Japan and Spain on the distinctive aspects of U.S. law and legal methodology, and has lectured at the International Law Institute in Washington, D.C., to international and foreign procurement practitioners on the characteristics of common-law systems.

D. BRUCE LA PIERRE
Professor of Law

Bruce La Pierre is an expert in school desegregation, election law, and federalism issues, and has established an Appellate Clinic for law school students. He has taught abroad at Universidade Católica Portuguesa in Portugal, the University of Navarra in Spain, and at the law school’s Summer Institute for Global Justice. He is a frequent lecturer at Aoyama Gakuin University in Japan. He has also participated in the Jean Monnet Chair International Summer Seminar in Rome.

C.J. LARKIN
Administrative Director of the ADR Program and Senior Lecturer in Law

C.J. Larkin has an extensive background as a criminal and family lawyer and as a mediator. She is a founding member of Mediators Without Borders. Under her leadership, the ADR Program has received a three-year grant from the Department of State to establish exchanges with Nepali law schools and NGOs providing community mediation. Each summer, students and ADR colleagues travel to Nepal with Larkin to provide consulting and training services to Nepali mediation programs. Each spring, a Nepali delegation of attorneys, law professors, and civil society program representatives visit the law school to continue the exchange. Larkin (in collaboration with the International Institute of St. Louis) received a grant from the ASC Foundation to provide training to immigrant-refugees, including non-English-speaking Somalis and Somali Bantus. She has established relationships with law firms and mediation programs in Amsterdam and Delhi, and will return to collaborate on ADR trainings in summer 2008.

STEPHEN H. LEGOMSKY
John S. Lehmann University Professor

Stephen Legomsky is one of the world’s leading experts in immigration and refugee law and policy. A member of the American Law Institute, he has chaired the Immigration Law Section of the AALS and the Refugee Committee of the American Branch of the International Law Association. He has testified before Congress and been a consultant to several U.S. presidential administrations, the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, the immigration ministers of Russia and Ukraine, and several foreign governments. He has held lecturing or research appointments abroad in Australia, Austria, Germany, Italy, Mexico, New Zealand, Singapore, Suriname, Switzerland, and the United Kingdom. His immigration law course book has been the required text at 157 law schools, and he has two books published by Oxford University Press.
FACULTY

RONALD M. LEVIN
Henry Hitchcock Professor of Law

Ronald Levin is a nationally known administrative law scholar who has co-authored a casebook and written many articles in that field. He is past chair of the ABA Section of Administrative Law and Regulatory Practice and of both the AALS Sections on Administrative Law and on Legislation. He has lectured in Japan and served as a consultant to the Supreme Court of Indonesia. Currently, he is a reporter on judicial review for the ABA’s Project on the Administrative Law of the European Union.

JO ELLEN D. LEWIS
Associate Director, Legal Practice Program and Senior Lecturer in Law

Jo Ellen Lewis has served several times as a visiting professor at Aoyama Gakuin University in Tokyo, teaching courses ranging from real estate transactions to introductions to the American judicial system. She has also taught a Japanese graduate-level law course on, among other topics, an analysis of the First Amendment in the context of a recent federal court case, including reviewing the briefs from that case and an appellate argument.

MAXINE LIPELES
Director, Interdisciplinary Environmental Clinic, and Senior Lecturer in Law

Maxine Lipeles directs the law school’s Interdisciplinary Environmental Clinic, which offers pro bono legal and technical support to local environmental and community organizations. In addition, she teaches Global Warming & The Law and Environmental Law. She is also a senior lecturer in Washington University’s School of Arts & Sciences.

CHARLES R. McMANIS
Thomas & Karole Green Professor of Law; Director, Intellectual Property & Technology Law Program; and Director, Center for Research on Innovation and Entrepreneurship

Charles McManis is an internationally recognized expert in intellectual property law. He is a member of the American Law Institute and has served as a consultant for the World Intellectual Property Organization. A member of the International Association of Teachers and Researchers of Intellectual Property, he has taught, lectured, or researched throughout the United States and in Argentina, Brazil, China, Germany, India, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, Switzerland, Taiwan, and the United Kingdom. In 2007 he was appointed an ambassador to Korea University as part of Washington University’s McDonnell International Scholars Academy.

CARL MINZNER
Associate Professor of Law

Carl Minzner specializes in Chinese law and policy. Before joining the law faculty in 2007, he served as senior counsel to the Congressional-Executive Commission on China and was an International Affairs Fellow at the Council on Foreign Relations. He also served as a Yale-China Legal Education fellow at the Xibei Institute of Politics and Law in Xi’an. His published works include articles on citizen petitioning institutions in China and reforms to the regulations governing Chinese civil society organizations.

A. PETER MUTHARIKA
Professor of Law

Peter Mutharika is an expert on international economic law, international law, and comparative constitutional law. He serves as a foreign policy adviser to the government of Malawi, participated in the U.N. World Summit, and was a Malawi delegate to the United Nations General Assembly 66th Session. He is also a member of the Panel of Arbitrators and Panel of Conciliators for the International Centre for Settlement of Investment Disputes. He has participated in and presented a paper at the Malawi Constitutional Review Conference. He has taught or conducted research in Africa, Canada, Europe, and the United States.

KIMBERLY JADE NORWOOD
Professor of Law and Associate Professor of African & African American Studies

Kimberly Norwood has focused her research on tort reform, venue shopping, and racial identity. Among her international work, she helped establish a summer externship program for law students in Ghana and Kenya, and has lectured in Japan on the American tort law system.

STANLEY L. PAULSON
William Gardiner Hammond Professor of Law & Professor of Philosophy

Stanley L. Paulson specializes in European legal philosophy and legal theory. A prolific author, he is a renowned authority on the work of legal philosopher and constitutional theorist, Hans Kelsen (1881-1973). He delivered the academic keynote address to the Upper House of the Austrian Federal Parliament at a session honoring Kelsen on the occasion of his 125th birthday. A recipient of the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation’s Research Prize for scholars in the humanities, Paulson has held a number of post-doctoral fellowships in the United States and abroad. He received honorary doctorates from the Faculty of Law at the University of Uppsala (Sweden) and the Faculty of Law at the University of Kiel (Germany).

MICHAEL PEIL
Assistant Dean for International Programs and Executive Director, Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute

Michael Peil coordinates the international programs of the law school, including student and faculty exchanges, conferences, summer internships, and study-abroad opportunities. Previously, he served for five years as executive director of the International Law Students Association and practiced law in Chicago. Peil has lectured in international law in Armenia, under the aegis of the ABA’s Europe and Eurasia Program (CEELI). He serves on the Board of Directors for the World Affairs Council of St. Louis. He teaches European Union Law and has taught at the law school’s Summer Institute for Global Justice in Utrecht.

ADAM H. ROSENZWEIG
Associate Professor of Law

Adam Rosenzweig concentrates his research and teaching in the area of tax law and policy, including international taxation and international business transactions. Before joining the Washington University faculty in 2007, he was a visiting assistant professor at Fordham University School of Law. He has also served as a law clerk to the Hon. Alex Kozinski of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit.
A leading authority in international criminal law and human rights, Leila Sadat is a prolific scholar who is particularly well known for her expertise on the International Criminal Court. She chaired the International Law Association committee on the ICC and was an NGO delegate to the U.N. Preparatory Committee and to the diplomatic conference in Rome at which the ICC was established. From 2001–2003, she served on the nine-member U.S. Commission for International Religious Freedom. She founded and continues to teach in the law school’s Summer Institute for Global Justice. A member of the American Law Institute, she is the co-author of a leading international criminal law casebook and an award-winning monograph on the ICC. She is a vice president and Executive Committee member of the International Law Association, secretary of the American Society of Comparative Law, vice president of the Association International de Droit Pénal, a former Executive Council member of the American Society of International Law, and a member of the French Société de Législation Comparée. She previously practiced international law in Paris, and clerked for both France’s Supreme Courts, the Cour de Cassation and the Conseil d’Etat.

MICHELE WAGNER SHORESMAN
Associate Dean for Graduate and Joint Degree Programs
Michele Shoresman earned her bachelor’s, master’s and doctoral degrees at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana. She conducted her dissertation research in the People’s Republic of China in 1988. Shoresman has been at Washington University in St. Louis since 1990. She directs the LL.M. in U.S. Law for international lawyers, is the administrative director for the LL.M. in Intellectual Property & Technology Law and for the J.S.D. Program, and is the advisor for all joint degree students. Shoresman has won fellowships to Japan, China, and Korea, and was a Fulbright Scholar to Germany. She has been recognized for her work by the law school’s Women’s Law Caucus and was the recipient of the law school’s 2007 Student Bar Association’s Distinguished Service Award.

GILBERT SISON
Adjunct Professor of Law
Gilbert Sison practices law with the St. Louis firm of Rosenblum, Schwartz, Rogers & Glass, PC. Prior to that, he practiced at Bryan Cave, LLP and Thompson Coburn, LLP. He serves as a coach of the law school’s Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition team and teaches a course in international courts and tribunals. In his seven years as coach, the law school has won three U.S. Regional Championships and has also won a number of written and oral awards.

KENT D. SYVERUD
Dean and Ethan A.H. Shepley University Professor
Kent Syverud has established a reputation as a prominent scholar in complex litigation, insurance law, and civil procedure. Before joining the Washington University faculty, he served as dean and Garner Anthony Professor of Law at Vanderbilt Law School. He has also taught at the University of Michigan Law School and Cornell Law School (as the Marc and Beth Goldberg Distinguished Visiting Professor of Law). Additionally, Syverud was a visiting professor at the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Tokyo. He practiced law at Wilmer, Cutler & Pickering in Washington, D.C., and clerked for Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O’Connor. He has served as president of the American Law Deans Association and the Southeastern Association of Law Schools. He currently serves on the Board of Trustees of the Law School Admission Council. He was the editor of the Journal of Legal Education from 1998–2004.

KAREN L. TOKARZ
Professor of Law; Associate Professor of African & African American Studies; and Executive Director, Clinical Education & Alternative Dispute Resolution Programs
Karen Tokarz is a leader in both national and international clinical education, as well as an expert in civil rights mediation and employment discrimination law. She is past chair of the AALS Clinical Education Section, past president of the U.S. Clinical Legal Education Association, and a founding member of the Global Alliance for Justice Education and of Mediators without Borders. Among her international clinical work, she has established student and faculty exchanges in southern Africa and India.
FORMER NUREMBERG PROSECUTOR AND PHILANTHROPIST Whitney R. Harris, center, with Professors Leila Sadat and Stephen Legomsky. Sadat is the current director of Washington University Law’s Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute, and Legomsky was the Harris Institute’s first director.